1.0 INTRODUCTION

1.1 Purpose

The purpose of this report is to identify and outline Teledyne's recommended procedure to "upgrade" the operating system of laptops and desktops with QUIKLOOK software from Windows XP to Windows 7. It is never recommended or necessary to upgrade the operating system of QUIKLOOK II or QLII+ diagnostic systems.

1.2 Scope

This report documents the recommended QUIKLOOK uninstallation procedure, Windows software "upgrade", reinstallation of QUIKLOOK, and required/optional setting setups to upgrade a computer from WinXP to Win7.

2.0 WINXP TO WIN7 RECOMMENDED "UPGRADE" NOTES

Microsoft does not offer a WinXP to Win7 upgrade. The "upgrade" option on the Windows 7 installer is meant only to go from Vista to Win7. In order to upgrade a computer from WinXP to Win7, you must install W7 writing over WinXP. This process causes all installed programs and setting to be lost. It is also possible to "wipe" the drive clean and install Win7 from scratch but Teledyne strongly recommends against this practice.

To use the recommended process of writing Win7 over WinXP, select the "Custom" operation in the Win7 installer and choose the drive on which XP resides. The XP Windows folder is moved to to "Windows.old" and a fresh install of Win7 is performed. The computer will boot up just like a new system but any software/user accounts/configurations are lost. All data on the drive, however, remains unharmed.

The following procedure is the only one recommended by Teledyne and we advise against the true upgrade options in the Win7 installer.

3.0 PROCEDURE

3.1 Uninstall QUIKLOOK Software

- 1. Plug in the laptop and turn it on.
- 2. Uninstall QUIKLOOK and delete the QUIKLOOK directory before the upgrade
